ALTEROZA
INDÚSTRIA E COMÉRCIO DE CONSERVAS

A Legacy from the Amazon

Alteroza is a Brazilian company specializing in the production and export of premium hearts of palm from the açaí palm (Euterpe oleracea) and frozen açaí pulp. With over 50 years of experience, our history dates back to 1973, rooted in innovation, sustainability, and a passion for the Amazon.

Sustainable Practices

Alteroza actively supports and promotes the sustainable management of native açaí groves—a practice that ensures not only the preservation of the forest but also its ongoing productivity. This system is carefully carried out by local producers, who selectively harvest only the oldest and tallest açaí palms that have completed their productive cycle. This process, which respects the natural rhythm of the plant, allows more light to reach the forest floor and creates space for younger shoots to grow strong, ensuring the constant renewal of the grove. In doing so, excessive shading is prevented, and a favorable environment is maintained for the preservation of biodiversity and the ecological balance of the forest.

This commitment is also reflected in Alteroza's production process. Unlike most industries, which can have a significant environmental impact, Alteroza's manufacturing generates minimal and entirely natural waste due to its fully organic products. All the "waste" resulting from palm heart processing consists solely of palm sheaths, which, rather than becoming an environmental burden, are returned to the forest, where they decompose and transform into organic fertilizer—enriching the soil and fostering the growth of new plants. It is a virtuous cycle in which nothing is lost: the forest offers its fruits, and Alteroza gives back the very matter that nourishes it.

That is why, by sourcing palm hearts and açaí from producers who follow this system, Alteroza ensures not only superior quality products but also reinforces its mission to value standing forests, promote the responsible use of natural resources, and support Amazonian extractivist communities. Each jar of palm heart or açaí pulp carries more than just flavor and authenticity—it carries a commitment to sustainability, social responsibility, and respect for one of the world's richest and most vital ecosystems.

Our History

Alteroza's origins trace back to 1973, when Edison and Zuleika Gonzalez moved from São Paulo to the Amazon region to explore new opportunities in the food industry. That same year, they founded Maiauatá in Abaetetuba, pioneering the commercialization of hearts of palm from the Euterpe oleracea (açaí palm). With its distinctive flavor and quality, the product quickly gained market recognition, leading to the company's expansion to Belém and earning national and international acclaim—culminating in the Exporter of the Year Award in 1988.

In 1998, seeking to expand production, Edison created Alteroza, headquartered in Anajás and managed by his son, Edison Júnior. The company continued its tradition of quality and innovation, opening a key distribution unit in Barcarena in 2002. A turning point came in 2008 when Maiauatá's factory in Belém was expropriated, leading to the full integration of its operations into Alteroza's modern facility in Barcarena, where it remains the company's main production site.

Alteroza has since expanded its portfolio with sustainably sourced Amazonian products, launching 100% natural frozen açaí pulp in 2017 and açaí sorbet in 2019. The company remains committed to social responsibility and environmental stewardship, supporting local communities and promoting regional culture. Today, Alteroza stands as a symbol of northern Brazilian pride—delivering authentic Amazonian flavors with guaranteed quality, sustainability, and innovation.

Our Certifications

Alteroza Industry maintains a strong commitment to excellence and reliability in every stage of its production. In Brazil, the company operates with a Sanitary License granted by the National Health Surveillance Agency (ANVISA), which certifies strict compliance with Good Manufacturing Practices (GMP) in the production of açaí palm hearts. It also holds registration with the Ministry of Agriculture, Livestock, and Supply (MAPA), the federal agency responsible for regulating the production of açaí pulp. Furthermore, Alteroza holds the Brazilian Organic Certification, issued by EcoCert, an internationally recognized authority in organic certification. This guarantees that Alteroza products meet all the requirements set forth by Brazil's organic production regulations, ensuring responsible agricultural practices, environmental protection, and respect for local communities.

In addition, Alteroza holds a series of certifications obtained through rigorous audits conducted by globally recognized organizations, which attest to the quality and excellence of its products in the international market. Among these is the license from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA), which authorizes the commercialization of food products in the United States. The company also holds the Organic Compliance Certificate, proving production free from synthetic substances, pesticides, and GMOs, and rooted in sustainability, natural cultivation, ecological balance, and respect for human life. Alteroza is further certified under the EOS (Equivalent Organic Standard), aligning with the European Union's organic regulations, enabling the export of its products throughout the European market, and holds the NOP (National Organic Program) certification, required by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA), which ensures conformity with the country's stringent organic standards.

Additional certifications reinforce Alteroza's commitment to quality and food safety, such as the Vegan Certification, achieved through DNA detection testing and thorough audits of Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs), ensuring the absence of any animal-derived ingredients; the HACCP Certification, which identifies hazards and defines preventive measures to ensure maximum food safety; and the internationally respected Kosher Certification, synonymous with control and excellence, guaranteeing that products meet the dietary requirements of Jewish tradition.
